INTRODUCTION

This supplement to the SURVEY OF CURRENT BUSINESS is one of a series of reports that presents the revised national income and product account (NIPA) estimates that resulted from the comprehensive revision released in December 1985. The October and December 1985 issues of the SURVEY contained articles describing the revision. Estimates for 1982-85 appeared in the March 1986 issue of the SURVEY. This report presents estimates for the periods before 1983.

In this report, most annual series begin with 1929 and most quarterly and monthly series begin with 1946. Some detailed tables cover shorter time spans, and one table, showing GNP in current and constant dollars, goes back to 1909. Beginning with 1960, the estimates cover the 50 States and the District of Columbia; before 1960, Alaska and Hawaii were partly omitted (for additional information, see page 5 of the July 1961 SURVEY). Estimates in this report will not be revised until the next comprehensive revision. This report also presents definitions of the NIPA entries and the classifications of production presented in the NIPA tables. These definitions reflect changes that were introduced with the comprehensive revision in December 1985. Thus, they supersede definitions provided in earlier publications.

A series of reports that explains the conceptual framework of the NIPA's and the methodology used to prepare the estimates is in preparation. The first two reports have been published: An Introduction to National Economic Accounting, Methodology Paper Series MP-1, March 1985; and Corporate Profits: Profits Before Tax, Profits Tax Liability, and Dividends, Methodology Paper Series MP-2, May 1985. A summary explanation of the NIPA's appears in the "The National Income and Product Accounts of the United States: An Overview," in the February 1981 SURVEY. Selected BEA publications dating from 1954 to 1976 that contain information on the conceptual framework and on the methodology have been reprinted as Readings in Concepts and Methods of National Income Statistics, 1976 (NTIS Accession No. PB-251 329).

Definitions and Classifications Underlying the National Income and Product Accounts

Definitions of National Income and Product Accounts Entries

Income and product aggregates are defined below, and their definitions are amplified by definitions of their major components. Aspects of the aggregates and their major components that are not apparent from their titles are emphasized.

The definitions are presented in the framework of the five-account summary of the national income and product accounts (NIPA's) shown in table A, pages xvi and xvii). Each entry has a counterentry, generally in another account. The parenthetical numbers that follow an entry in table A identify the counterentry by account and line number.

With the exception of major income and product aggregates, entries are usually defined in the sequence in which they appear in the five-account summary. The definition is not repeated when the counterentry appears, but a cross-reference is made to the place of its first appearance. The definitions of GNP, national income, and some other production aggregates can be found in the first two sections, which define the entries in the national income and product account. Definitions of personal income and disposable personal income can be found in the section that defines the entries in the personal income and outlay account.

National income and product account: Gross national product

GNP is the market value of the goods and services produced by labor and property supplied by residents of the United States. It is the sum of purchases of goods and services by persons and government, gross private domestic investment (including the change in business inventories), and net exports (exports less imports). GNP excludes business purchases of goods and services on current account. Its investment component is measured before deduction of charges for consumption of fixed capital.

Personal consumption expenditures (1-27) is goods and services purchased by individuals, operating expenses of nonprofit institutions serving individuals, and the value of food, fuel, clothing, rent of dwellings, and financial services received in kind by individuals. Net purchases of used goods are also included. Purchases of residential structures by individuals and nonprofit institutions serving individuals are classified as gross private domestic investment.

Gross private domestic investment (1-31) is fixed capital goods—structures and equipment—purchased by private business and nonprofit institutions, and the value of the change in the physical volume of inventories held by private business. The former include private purchases of new residential structures purchased for tenant or owner occupancy. Net purchases of used goods and structures are also included.

Net exports of goods and services (1-38) is exports (1-39) less imports (1-40) of goods and services. Imports are deducted because they are included in the expenditure components of GNP, but are not part of national production.

Government purchases of goods and services (1-41) is the compensation of government employees and purchases from business and from abroad. Transfer payments, interest paid by government, and subsidies are excluded. Gross investment by government enterprises is included, but their current outlays are not. Net purchases of used goods and structures are included; sales and purchases of land and financial assets are excluded.

National income and product account: Charges against gross national product and the statistical discrepancy

Charges against GNP is the costs incurred and the profits earned in the production of GNP. Accordingly, it equals GNP, except for the statistical discrepancy. The factor charges—compensation of employees, proprietors' income, rental income of persons, corporate profits, and net interest—represent the incomes of the factors of production (labor and property). The total of these factor incomes is called national income. Three nonfactor charges—business transfer payments, indirect business taxes, and the current surplus of government enterprises less subsidies—are added to national income to yield charges against net national product. Capital consumption is added to charges against net national product to yield charges against GNP.

The aggregates that have been enumerated so far differ from each other because of distinctions that are made between market value and factor cost concepts and between gross and net concepts. GNP is a gross market value measure; national income is a net factor cost measure; and net national product is a net market value measure. One further basic distinction can be made in defining the value of production. This is the distinction between domestic measures and national measures. Domestic measures relate to the physical location of the factors of production; they refer to production attributable to all labor and property located in a country. National measures relate to the ownership of the factors of production; they refer to production attributable to labor and property supplied by residents of a country. The national measures differ from the domestic measures by the net inflow of labor and property incomes from abroad.

In principle, eight measures of production can be derived from these three distinctions; six are shown in this report. GNP has already been defined. Definitions of the other production measures follow. Gross domestic product is the gross market value of the goods and services attributable to labor and property located in the United States. Net national product is the net market value of the goods and services attributable to labor and property supplied by residents of the United States. Net domestic product is the net market value of the goods and services attributable to labor and property located in the United States. National income, the income that originates in the production of the goods and services attributable to labor and property supplied by residents of the United States, is a net factor cost measure. Incomes are recorded in the forms in which they accrue to residents and are measured before deduction of taxes on those incomes. Domestic income is also a net factor cost measure; it is the income that originates in the production of the goods and services attributable to labor and property located in the United States.

Compensation of employees (1-1) is the income accruing to employees as remuneration for their work. It is the sum of wages and salaries and of supplements to wages and salaries.

Wages and salaries (1-2) consists of the monetary remuneration of employees, including the compensation of corporate officers; commissions, tips, and bonuses; and receipts in kind that represent income to the recipients. It consists of disbursements (1-3) and wage accruals less disbursements (1-4). Disbursements is wages and salaries as just defined except that retroactive wages are counted when paid rather than when earned.

Supplements to wages and salaries (1-5) consists of employer contributions for social insurance and other labor income. Employer contributions for social insurance (1-6) includes employer payments under the following programs: Federal old-age, survivors, disability, and hospital insurance; State and Federal unemployment insurance; railroad retirement and unemployment insurance; government employee unemployment insurance and retirement; military medical insurance; and publicly administered workers' compensation. Other labor income (1-7) consists primarily of employer contributions to private pension and private welfare funds, including privately administered workers' compensation funds.

Proprietors' income with inventory valuation and capital consumption adjustments (1-8) is the income, including income in kind, of proprietorships and partnerships and of tax-exempt cooperatives. The imputed net rental income of owner-occupants of farm dwellings is included. Dividends and monetary interest received by proprietors of nonfinancial business and rental incomes received by persons not primarily engaged in the real estate business are excluded; these incomes are included in dividends, net interest, and rental income of persons. The inventory valuation adjustment is described following corporate profits, and the capital consumption adjustment is described following capital consumption allowances.

Rental income of persons with capital consumption adjustment (1-9) is the income of persons from the rental of real property, except the income of persons primarily engaged in the real estate business; the imputed net rental income of owner-occupants of nonfarm dwellings; and the royalties received by persons from patents, copyrights, and rights to natural resources. The capital consumption adjustment is described following capital consumption allowances.

Corporate profits with inventory valuation and capital consumption adjustments (1-10) is the income of organizations treated as corporations in the NIPA's. These organizations consist of all entities required to file Federal corporate tax returns, including mutual financial institutions and cooperatives subject to Federal income tax; private noninsured pension funds; nonprofit organizations that primarily serve business; Federal Reserve banks; and federally sponsored credit agencies. The income is that arising in current production. With several differences, this income is measured as receipts less expenses as defined in Federal tax law. Among these differences are: Receipts exclude capital gains and dividends received, expenses exclude depletion and capital losses, inventory withdrawals are valued at current replacement cost, and depreciation is on a consistent accounting basis and valued at current replacement cost. Because national income is defined as the income of U.S. residents, its profits component includes income earned abroad by U.S. corporations and excludes income earned in the United States by foreigners. The inventory valuation adjustment is described below, and the capital consumption adjustment is described following capital consumption allowances.

Profits before tax (1-11) is the income of organizations treated as corporations in the NIPA's, as described above, except that it reflects the inventory and depreciation accounting practices used for Federal income tax returns. It consists of profits tax liability, dividends, and undistributed corporate profits. This measure is sometimes referred to as "book profits."

Profits tax liability (1-12) is the sum of Federal, State, and local income taxes on all corporate earnings; these earning include capital gains and other income excluded from profits before tax. The taxes are measured on an accrual basis, net of applicable tax credits.

Profits after tax (1-13) is profits before tax less profits tax liability. It consists of dividends and undistributed corporate profits. Dividends (1-14) is payments in cash or other assets, excluding the corporation's own stock, made by corporations located in the United States and abroad to stockholders who are U.S. residents. The payments are measured net of dividends received by U.S. corporations. Dividends paid to State and local government social insurance funds and general government are included. Undistributed profits (1-15) is corporate profits after tax less dividends.

Inventory valuation adjustment (1-16) for corporations is the difference between the cost of inventory withdrawals as valued in determining profits before tax and the cost of withdrawals valued at current replacement cost. A similar adjustment is applied to nonfarm proprietors' income.

Net interest (1-18) is interest paid by business less interest received by business, plus interest received from abroad less interest paid to abroad. Interest payments on mortgage and home improvement loans are counted as interest paid by business, because homeowners are treated as businesses in the NIPA's. In addition to monetary interest, net interest includes imputed interest. The imputed interest payments by financial institutions other than life insurance carriers and private noninsured pension plans to persons, governments, and foreigners have imputed service charges as counterentries in GNP; they are included in personal consumption expenditures, in government purchases, and in exports, respectively.

Business transfer payments (1-20) is payments to persons for which they do not perform current services. Business transfer payments includes liability payments for personal injury, corporate gifts to nonprofit institutions, and consumer bad debts—i.e., defaults by consumers on debts owed to business.

Indirect business tax and nontax liability (1-21) consists of tax liabilities (except employer contributions for social insurance) that are chargeable to business expense in the calculation of profit-type incomes and of certain other business liabilities to government agencies (except government enterprises) that it is convenient to treat like taxes. Indirect business taxes include sales, excise, and property taxes, and the windfall profit tax on crude oil production. Taxes on corporate incomes are excluded; these taxes cannot be calculated until profits are known, and in that sense are not a business expense. Nontaxes includes regulatory and inspection fees, special assessments, fines and penalties, rents and royalties, and donations. Nontaxes generally excludes business purchases from government of goods and services that are similar to business purchases of intermediate products from other businesses. Government receipts from the sale of such products are netted against government purchases so that they do not appear in GNP.

Subsidies less current surplus of government enterprises (1-22). Subsidies is the monetary grants paid by government to business, including government enterprises at another level of government. The current surplus of government enterprises is their sales receipts and subsidies received from other levels of government less their current expenses. In the calculation of their current surplus, no deduction is made for depreciation charges and net interest paid. Subsidies and current surplus are combined because deficits incurred by government enterprises may result from selling goods to businesses at lower than market prices in lieu of giving them subsidies. For the same reason, the current surplus of government enterprises is not counted as a profit-type income and, accordingly, not as a factor charge.

Capital consumption allowances with capital consumption adjustment (1-24) is capital consumption based on the use of uniform service lives, straight-line depreciation, and replacement cost. For nonprofit institutions serving individuals, it is the value of the current services of the fixed capital assets owned and used by these institutions; it is included in personal consumption expenditures. Capital consumption allowances consists of depreciation charges and accidental damage to fixed capital. For nonfarm business and corporate farms, they are as reported on Federal income tax returns. For noncorporate farms, nonprofit institutions serving individuals, tax-exempt cooperatives, and owner-occupied houses, they are calculated by BEA based on their expenditures for fixed capital, uniform service lives, straight-line depreciation, and historical cost. Capital consumption adjustment (1-17) for corporations is the tax-return-based capital consumption allowances less the estimate of capital consumption allowances with capital consumption adjustment. Similar adjustments are calculated for proprietors' income, rental income of persons, and nonprofit institutions serving individuals.

Statistical discrepancy (1-26) is GNP less charges against GNP. It arises because GNP and charges against GNP are estimated independently.

Personal income and outlay account: Personal income

Personal income is the income received by persons from all sources, that is, from participation in production, from both government and business transfer payments, and from government interest, which is treated like a transfer payment. Persons consist of individuals, nonprofit institutions serving individuals, private noninsured welfare funds, and private trust funds. Proprietors' income is treated in its entirety as received by individuals. Life insurance carriers and private noninsured pension funds are not counted as persons, but their saving is credited to persons. Personal income is the sum of wage and salary disbursements, other labor income, proprietors' income with inventory valuation and capital consumption adjustments, rental income of persons with capital consumption adjustment, personal dividend income, personal interest income, and transfer payments, less personal contributions for social insurance.

Disposable personal income is personal income less personal tax and nontax payments. It is the income available to persons for spending or saving.

Wage and salary disbursements (see 1-3).

Other labor income (see 1-7).

Proprietors' income with inventory valuation and capital consumption adjustments (see 1-8).

Rental income of persons with capital consumption adjustment (see 1-9).

Personal dividend income (2-11) is the dividend income of persons from all sources. It equals dividends (see 1-14) less dividends received by government (2-13). Dividends received by government consists of dividends received by State and local government social insurance and other funds.

Personal interest income (2-14) is the interest income of persons from all sources. It equals net interest (see 1-18) plus interest paid by government to persons and business (2-16) less interest received by government (2-17) plus interest paid by consumers to business (2-18). The last item consists only of interest paid by individuals in their capacity as consumers.

Transfer payments to persons (2-19) is income payments to persons, generally in monetary form, for which they do not render current services. It consists of business transfer payments (see 1-20) and government transfer payments (2-21). Government transfer payments includes payments under the following programs: Federal old-age, survivors, disability, and hospital insurance; supplementary medical insurance; medicaid; State unemployment insurance; railroad retirement and unemployment insurance; government retirement and unemployment insurance; workers' compensation; veterans including veterans life insurance; food stamps; black lung; supplemental security income; and direct relief. Government payments to nonprofit institutions, other than for work under research and development contracts, are also included.

Personal contributions for social insurance (2-22) includes payments by employees, self-employed, and other individuals who participate in the following programs: Federal old-age, survivors, disability, and hospital insurance; supplementary medical insurance; State unemployment insurance; railroad retirement insurance; government retirement; veterans life insurance; and temporary disability insurance.

Personal income and outlay account: Personal taxes, outlays, and saving

Personal tax and nontax payments (2-1) is tax payments (net of refunds) by persons (except personal contributions for social insurance) that are not chargeable to business expense and certain other personal payments to government agencies (except government enterprises) that it is convenient to treat like taxes. Personal taxes include income, estate and gift, and personal property taxes. Nontaxes includes tuitions and fees paid to schools and hospitals operated mainly by government, passport fees, fines and penalties, and donations.

Personal outlays (2-2) is the sum of personal consumption expenditures (see 1-27), interest paid by consumers to business (see 2-18), and personal transfer payments to foreigners, net (2-5). The last item is personal remittances in cash and in kind to abroad less such remittances from abroad.

Personal saving (2-6) is personal income less the sum of personal outlays and of personal tax and nontax payments. It is the current saving of individuals (including proprietors), nonprofit institutions serving individuals, private noninsured welfare funds, and private trust funds. Personal saving may also be viewed as the sum of net acquisition of financial assets (such as cash and deposits, securities, and the net equity of individuals in life insurance and in private noninsured pension funds) and physical assets less the sum of net borrowing and of capital consumption allowances with capital consumption adjustment.

The latter is U.S. Government grants to foreign governments in cash and in kind and U.S. Government transfer payments, mainly retirement benefits, to former residents of the United States.

Net interest (3-5) paid by government is interest paid less interest received by government (see 2-17). Interest paid consists of interest paid to persons and business (see 2-16) and interest paid to foreigners (3-8). Interest paid to foreigners is interest paid by the U.S. Government to foreign businesses, governments, and persons.

Dividends received by government (see 2-13).

Subsidies less curent surplus of government enterprises (see 1-22).

Wage accruals less disbursements (see 1-4).

Surplus or deficit (−), national income and product accounts (3-13) is the sum of government receipts (lines 16, 17, 18, and 19 of account 3) less the sum of government expenditures (lines 1, 2, 5, 10, 11, and 12 of account 3). It may also be viewed as the net acquisition of financial assets by government and government enterprises, and net government purchases of land and of rights to government-owned land including oil resources.

Constant-Dollar Estimates and Price Indexes

The tables in this report contain, in addition to estimates in current dollars, estimates in constant dollars and of associated price indexes. Current-dollar estimates are provided for the income and product flows that underlie the five-account summary of the NIPA's (table A, pages xvi and xvii). Constant-dollar, or "real," estimates—i.e., estimates from which price change has been removed—are provided for measures that, in general, can be expressed in terms of products. These include GNP and its components, net national product and national income, and GNP by industry. For these estimates, each component is valued at its price in a base (valuation) period—in this report, the year 1982. Statistically, constant-dollar estimates are usually obtained by dividing the most detailed current-dollar components by appropriate price indexes, with 1982 = 100. In a few cases, they are obtained by extrapolating the current-dollar estimates in 1982 by physical quantity measures.

Another measure of constant-dollar GNP—command-basis GNP—also is included in this report. Command-basis GNP measures the amount of the goods and services over which a country has command as a result of current production. Command-basis GNP and GNP, which is the measure of current production, differ in the deflation procedures used for the net export components of the two measures. To obtain constant-dollar net exports for GNP, the current-dollar value of exports is deflated by export prices and the current-dollar value of imports is deflated by import prices; constant-dollar net exports is the difference between exports and imports. To obtain the constant-dollar measure of net exports for command-basis GNP, both current-dollar exports and imports are deflated by the implicit price deflator for imports.

The associated price indexes are the fixed-weighted price index and the chain price index. The fixed-weighted price index is a weighted average of the detailed price indexes used in the deflation of the goods and services that make up GNP. These price indexes are combined using weights that reflect the composition of GNP in 1982. Because the same weights are used for each period, changes in this index measure changes in prices over any period. The chain price index is an alternative measure of price change. It is a weighted average of the same detailed price indexes, but they are combined using weights that reflect the composition of GNP in the first of two consecutive periods. Thus, changes in this index measure changes in prices only between the consecutive periods.

The implicit price deflator is a byproduct of the deflation of GNP. It is derived as the ratio of current- to constant-dollar GNP (multiplied by 100). It is a weighted average of the detailed price indexes used in the deflation of GNP, but they are combined using weights that reflect the composition of GNP in each period. Thus, changes in the implicit price defaltor reflect not only changes in prices but also changes in the composition of GNP.

Classifications of Production

Sector

In addition to the breakdowns of GNP, net national product, and national income that appear in the five-account summary of the NIPA's (table A), these measures of production also are shown in the tables of this report for each of the four sectors of the economy—rest of the world, business, households and institutions, and government. The production of each of these sectors is defined below.

Rest-of-the-world: Production abroad that is attributable to factors of production supplied by U.S. residents less the production in the United States attributable to factors of production supplied by foreign residents. Production is measured by the net inflow of labor and property incomes.

Business: Production in the United States by all entities that produce goods and services for sale at a price intended at least to approximate costs of production plus certain other entities treated as business in the NIPA's. In the main, it covers the production of corporate and noncorporate private entities organized for profit. Mutual financial institutions, private noninsured pension funds, cooperatives, nonprofit organizations (i.e., entities determined to be nonprofit by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) for purposes of determining income tax liability) that primarily serve business, Federal Reserve banks, federally sponsored credit agencies, and government enterprises are also included. Owner-occupied housing as well as buildings and equipment owned and used by nonprofit institutions that primarily serve individuals are treated as business entities selling their current services to their owners. Production of the business sector can be measured either in terms of the net value of the goods and services business produces in the United States or in terms of the costs incurred and profits earned by business from production in the United States.

Households and institutions: Production in the United States by households, consisting of families and unrelated individuals, and by nonprofit institutions serving individuals. Production is measured by the compensation of the employees of these entities.

Government: Production by all Federal and State and local government agencies except government enterprises. Production is measured by the compensation of the employees of these agencies.

Legal form of organization

For the business sector, national income and its components and capital consumption are shown in the tables of this report for four legal forms of organizations—corporations, sole proprietorships and partnerships, other private business, and government enterprises. The entities whose production is included in each of these legal forms are specified below.

Corporate business: Domestic activities of all entities required to file Federal corporate income tax returns; mutual financial institutions; private noninsured pension funds; cooperatives subject to Federal income taxes; nonprofit organizations that primarily serve business; Federal Reserve banks; and Federally sponsored credit agencies.

Sole proprietorships: All entities that would be required to file IRS Schedule C (Profits or Loss from Business or Profession) or Schedule F (Farm Income and Expenses) if the proprietor met the filing requirement, together with farm housing.

Partnerships: All entities required to file Federal partnership income tax returns.

Other private business: All entities required to report rent and royalty income on the individual income tax return in IRS Schedule E (Supplemental Income Schedule) if the individual met the filing requirement; tax-exempt cooperatives; owner-occupied nonfarm housing; and buildings and equipment owned and used by nonprofit institutions serving individuals.

Government enterprises: Government agencies for which their current expenses usually are more than one-half covered by the sale of goods and services to the public. Depreciation and net interest paid are excluded from expenses and interest received is excluded from sales in classifying the agencies.

Industry

Industrial distributions are presented in this report for GNP, national income and its components, capital consumption allowances, employment and hours, and changes in the stock of business inventories.[1] The classification underlying the distributions of private activities is based on the Standard Industrial Classification (SIC).[2] The estimates of gross product originating by industry are based on the 1972 SIC beginning with 1947; all other distributions are based on the 1972 SIC beginning with 1948 and on the 1942 SIC prior to 1948. For selected series, distributions for 1948 are shown on both the 1942 and 1972 SIC. Industrial distributions of government activities are not provided; instead they are combined into a single category. For most series, separate estimates are shown for Federal and for State and local government activities and also for the activities of government enterprises.

The industrial distributions for private activities are based on data collected either from "establishments" or from "companies" (also called enterprises or firms). Establishments, as defined for purposes of the SIC, are economic units, generally at a single physical location, where business is conducted or where services or industrial operations are performed. Companies consist of one or more establishments owned by the same legal entity or group of affiliated entities. Establishments are classified into an SIC industry on the basis of their principal product or service, and companies are classified into an SIC industry on the basis of the principal SIC industry of all their establishments. Because large multi-establishment companies typically own establishments that are classified in different SIC industries, industrial distributions of the same item for establishments and companies can be significantly different. For example, employment of steel manufacturing companies differs from employment of steel manufacturing establishments, because the former includes employment of establishments that are not classified as manufacturing steel, and excludes employment of establishments that manufacture steel but are not owned by steel manufacturing companies.

For the NIPA series, industrial distributions on a consistent establishment or company basis are not available. For the following series, the industrial distribution is based on establishment data: Compensation of employees, employment, hours, inventories, rental income of persons, farm proprietors' income, farm net interest, and farm capital consumption allowances. For nonfarm proprietors and partnerships, industrial distributions of proprietors' income, net interest, and capital consumption allowances are based on company data but are regarded as being substantially the same as if they were based on establishment data because nearly all unincorporated companies own only a single establishment (and the few multi-establishment companies usually own establishments in the same SIC industry). For corporations, industrial distributions of profits, nonfarm net interest, and nonfarm capital consumption allowances are based on company data.

As a result, the industrial distribution of national income presented in this report reflects a mix of establishment and company data. For the industrial distribution of GNP, however, special estimates of corporate profits and corporate capital consumption allowances are prepared that approximate an establishment basis; therefore, except for corporate net interest, industry GNP is considered to be based on establishment data.[3]

In addition to the establishment-company data problem, individual industry series presented in this report are not fully comparable over time. Historical comparability is affected primarily by two factors. First, in some instances information was lacking to permit BEA to make accurate adjustments to conform the estimates for 1971 and earlier years to the 1972 SIC. Second, the industrial classification of the same establishment or company may change over time.

Estimates based on establishment data as well as those based on company data are affected by the first factor. The second affects company-based estimates much more than establishment-based estimates. The classification of a company is subject to change due to (1) shifts in the level of consolidation of entities for which company reports are filed; (2) mergers and acquisitions; and (3) other shifts in principal activities, especially for large diversified firms. For example, the level of consolidation used by corporations in filing their Federal income tax returns was significantly altered in the 1930's and 1940's. Affiliated corporations were allowed to file consolidated returns from 1929 to 1933 and again in 1942 and subsequent years, but not in the intervening period. As a result, from 1934 to 1941 the company consisted only of individual corporations; in the other years, the company consisted of either an individual corporation or a grouping of affiliated corporations. Changes in the level of consolidation used by corporations in filing these returns affected the industrial distribution of corporate profits, net interest, and capital consumption allowances, which are derived primarily from tabulations of corporate tax returns.

In addition to the SIC industrial distributions of private activities, some NIPA tables show the following special SIC groupings:

Virtually all States and many localitie use July 1-June 30 fiscal years; the rest use varying fiscal years. The national income and product account measures shown in this table are for the fiscal year ending June 30. The differences that arise from restating the Census data to a year ending June 30 are included in lines 12, 13, and 14 (receipts) and line 26 (expenditures).

2. Prior to 1968 dividends received is included in interest received (lines 8 and 22).

[1] Beginning in 1960, the treatment of net exports of gold in the NIPA's differs from that in the BPA's. BPA gold exports (line 2) and imports (line 11) are removed from the NIPA's. Imports of gold in the NIPA's (line 15) is the excess of the value of gold in domestic final sales plus the change in business inventories over the value of U.S. production of gold. Prior to 1960, the treatment of net exports of gold in the NIPA's and BPA's is identical, and is the same as the present NIPA treatment.

[2] BPA capital gains and losses included in U.S. direct investment income abroad (line 3) and in foreign direct investment income in the U.S. (line 12) are removed from the NIPA's beginning in 1974 for imports and 1977 for exports; data needed to remove them from the NIPA's in earlier years are not available.

[3] Consists of statistical revisions in the BPA's that have not yet been incorporated in the NIPA's.

[4] Consists of arms shipments to Israel financed under the Emergency Security Act of 1973. In the NIPA's, these arms shipments are classified as military grants, which are included in the defense purchases component of GNP at the time they are acquired by the U.S. Government. Their transfer abroad is not reflected in the NIPA's.

[5] Consists of transactions between the United States and its territories and Puerto Rico. The treatment of U.S. territories and Puerto Rico in the NIPA's differs from that in the BPA's. In the NIPA's they are included in the rest of the world; in the BPA's, they are treated as part of the United States. The adjustments to exports and imports of goods and services are shown in lines 6 and 16 respectively; however, because data are not available to adjust service exports and imports separately, line 6 includes the net of exports and imports of services by U.S. territories and Puerto Rico. The adjustment to unilateral transfers, net (line 33) consists only of transfer payments from persons because transfer payments, subsidies, and grants-in-aid from the Federal Government to residents of U.S. territories and Puerto Rico are excluded from NIPA transfer payments to foreigners.

[6] Represents interest paid by government to foreigners. This item is treated as an import of services in the BPA's. In the NIPA's, it is excluded from government purchases and, thus, also from imports.

[7] Consists of shipments to the United States from Alaska and Hawaii. These are added to imports in 1946 to adjust to geographic coverage of imports to the 48-State coverage used in the NIPA's prior to 1960. From 1947 through 1959, such shipments are negligible. Beginning with 1960, the adjustment is not required because Alaska and Hawaii gained statehood in late 1959.

[8] Consists of a U.S. Government payment to India under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act. In the NIPA's, this payment is included in capital grants received by the United States (net). In the BPA's, it is included in unilateral transfers (excluding military grants of goods and services), net.

[9] Consists of financing provided to Israel in accordance with the Emergency Security Act of 1973 and a U.S. Government payment to India under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act.

[1] Beginning with 1973, the inventory valuation adjustment (IVA) shown in this table differs from the IVA that adjusts business incomes. The IVA in this table reflects the mix of methods (first-in, first-out; last-in, first-out; etc.) underlying book value inventories derived primarily from Census Bureau statistics. This mix differs from that underlying business income derived primarily from Internal Revenue Service statistics. Prior to 1973, the two IVA's are the same because information required for separate estimates is not available.

[2] Prior to 1959, inventories held by construction establishments are included in line 23. In 1959, the change in business inventories for construction establishments was $0.3 billion.

1. Inventories are as of the end of the quarter. The quarter-to-quarter change in inventories calculated from current-dollar inventories in this table is not the current-dollar change in business inventories (CBI) component of GNP. The former is the difference between two inventory stocks, each valued at their respective end-of-quarter prices. The latter is the change in the physical volume of inventories valued at average prices of the quarter. In addition, changes calculated from this table are at quarterly rates, whereas CBI is stated at annual rates.

2. Prior to 1960, inventories held by construction establishments are included in line 5. In 1960, the value of inventories held by construction establishments was $2.7 billion.

3. Quarterly totals at monthly rates. Business final sales equals final sales less gross product of households and institutions, government, and rest of the world, and includes a small amount of final sales by farms.

1. Inventories are as of the end of the quarter. Quarter-to-quarter changes calculated from this table are at quarterly rates, whereas the constant-dollar change in business inventories component of GNP is stated at annual rates.
2. Prior to 1959, inventories held by construction establishments are included in line 5. In 1959, the constant-dollar value of inventories held by construction establishments was $9.1 billion.
3. Quarterly totals at monthly rates. Business final sales equals final sales less gross product of households and institutions, government, and rest of the world, and includes a small amount of final sales by farms.

[1] Full-time equivalent employees equals the number of employees on full-time schedules plus the number of employees on part-time schedules converted to a full-time basis. The conversion is made by multiplying the number of employees on part-time schedules by the ratio of average weekly hours per employee on part-time schedules to average weekly hours per employee on full-time schedules in each industry.

[2] Includes Coast Guard.

[1] Full-time equivalent employees equals the number of employees on full-time schedules plus the number of employees on part-time schedules converted to a full-time basis. The conversion is made by multiplying the number of employees on part-time schedules by the ratio of average weekly hours per employee on part-time schedules to average weekly hours per employee on full-time schedules in each industry.

[2] Includes Coast Guard.

NOTE.—The fixed-weighted price index and the chain price index, both of which are weighted averages of the detailed prices used in the deflation of GNP, are measures of price change. In calculating changes in these indexes, the composition of GNP is held constant. Consequently these changes reflect only changes in prices. The fixed-weighted price index measures price change over any period, using as weights the composition of GNP in 1982. The chain price index measures price change between two consecutive periods, using as weights the composition of GNP in the first period. The implicit price deflator is a byproduct of the deflation of GNP. It is derived as the ratio of current- to constant-dollar GNP (multiplied by 100). It it the average of the detailed prices used in the deflation of GNP, but the prices are weighted by the composition of GNP in each period. Consequently, the implicit price deflator reflects not only changes in prices but also cha.ges in the composition of GNP, and its use as a measure of price change should be avoided.

1. Except for farm proprietorships and partnerships (line 14) and other private business (line 18), the capital consumption adjustment is calculated in two parts. The adjustment for consistent accounting at historical cost converts depreciation based on the service lives and depreciation schedules employed by firms when filing their income tax returns to consistent service lives and straight-line depreciation schedules. The adjustment for current replacement cost converts the historical cost series with consistent accounting to a current replacement cost series. For farm proprietorships and partnerships and other private business, the historical cost series is based on consistent service lives and straight-line depreciation schedules so that the adjustment reflects only a conversion to current replacement cost.

2. Fixed capital assets owned and used by these entities are considered to be business activities selling their current services to their owners. The value of these services is included in personal consumption expenditures and is equal to their current-account purchases including capital consumption allowances with capital consumption adjustment.

[1] Consists of interest paid on the deposit liabilities of commercial and mutual saving banks, savings and loan associations, and credit unions.

[2] Interest received by nonfinancial sole proprietorships and partnerships is considered interest received by persons and is included in line 28.

NOTE.—In table 8.8, imputed interest paid (line 35) is the difference between the property income received by financial intermediaries from the investment of depositors' or beneficiaries' funds and the interest paid by them to business, persons, governments, and foreigners. In table 8.9, imputed interest (line 52)—the interest component of imputations that affect GNP—consists of the imputed interest paid by financial intermediaries other than life insurance carriers and private noninsured pension plans to persons and government, and the interest paid on owner-occupied housing and on buildings and equipment owned and used by nonprofit institutions serving individuals.

1. Contributions for these programs, for which a social insurance fund is imputed, are set equal to benefits paid. These payments are funded directly out of current budget.
2. Consists largely of retirement programs for Public Health Service officers and employees of the judiciary.
3. Consists of payments for medical services for dependents of active duty military personnel at nonmilitary facilities.

NOTE.—(1) Only national income and product items for which there are imputations are shown in this table. (2) In table 8.8, imputed interest paid (line 35) is the difference between the property income received by financial intermediaries from the investment of depositors' or beneficiaries' funds and the interest paid by them to business, persons, governments, and foreigners. In table 8.9, imputed interest (line 52)—the interest component of imputations that affect GNP—consists of the imputed interest paid by financial intermediaries other than life insurance carriers and private noninsured pension plans to persons and government, and the interest paid on owner-occupied housing and on buildings and equipment owned and used by nonprofit institutions serving individuals.

[1] Equals imputed interest received by persons from life insurance carriers and private noninsured pension plans as shown in table 8.8 (line 50).

[2] Consists of income earned by low-income individuals who are not required to file income tax returns, unreported income that is included in the NIPA measure, and gross errors and omissions in lines 2 through 15. Also includes the net effect of errors in the IRS adjusted gross income (line 17) and NIPA personal income (line 1) measures. Such errors can arise from the sample used by IRS to estimate line 17 and from the data sources used by BEA to estimate line 1.
